WHEN DESIGNING A CLIENT'S HOME, WHAT ARE SOME OF YOUR MUST-HAVE APPLIANCES THAT YOU RECOMMEND TO YOUR CLIENTS DURING THE DESIGN STAGES?

Quooker Tap as featured in the Penthouse Collection for The Filaments, designed by Suna Interior Design.

In the kitchen I think that a hot tap is a must-have appliance. Gone are the days of waiting for the kettle to boil, now that we can have near boiling hot water on tap for cups of tea and cooking. Doing away with a kettle means that the kitchen can have a more streamlined look too. Another appliance, which has had an impact on kitchen design is the down-draught extractor. Built into the worktop behind the hob, it appears at the touch of a button when required, but disappears when not in use.

The Quooker Fusion! Offering both filtered cold and boiling water on demand. It's an environmentally friendly option, only boiling and filtering the water you need, not surplus, as a kettle would. Both the boiling and filtered water is instantly delivered, and there is a safety feature, making it a safe appliance around children.

I strongly recommend an integrated cooking area with hidden appliances such as remote control exhaust system, hidden disposal system, level electric cooking area, dishwasher and built in refrigerator. These appliances, especially in the kitchen, revolutionize not only the kitchen's functionality but also the total look of the livable area.

We are specifying wine fridges more and more often as a standard appliance in new developments. It is a really great addition, and one that certainly brings a luxury feel to any kitchen. Either a slim-line version that can tuck into a handy space or a full-on, full height wine fridge for the keener wine collector!

Families often have very specific and differing needs so I will never fill a client's home with expensive appliances just for the sake of it. Three of my personal favourites are a Quooker boiling water tap, Fisher & Paykel dishwasher drawers, and a Gaggenau CX 480 induction hob - one of those appliances you just can't really believe has not existed before.
